

Players Stage Galsworthy's Escape In Moyse Hall Tonight

Final Dress Rehearsal Successfully Run Off Last Night

Tonight marks the opening presentation of the Players' Club's first production of the year, "Escape" by John Galsworthy. The play depicts in ten episodes the adventures of an escaped convict as he dodges human blood hounds through rural England, working up to a dramatic climax which gives the play a strong and not too obvious conclusion. The action moves swiftly and with great variety through many phases of English country life, from fishing to tripping. Last night's final dress rehearsal rounded off the corners of the production and went through without a hitch. The scenery and lighting were run through first of all, before the actual play was rehearsed, just as it will appear tomorrow night.

Has Many Actresses
The cast is made up of an almost equal number of men and women, an unusual feature for a Players' Club production. Jim Harvey, well known to McGill audiences, plays the part of the escaped convict, and as the principle character appears in practically every scene. Cecil West, who has directed several previous Players' Club productions, is again in charge of the acting, and on this occasion has a noteworthy achievement to his credit in the English accents of the cast. The scenery under the direction of Howard Skelman is by way of being stylistic. The costumes, aside from those of the convicts, are those of every day life with modifications to suit the time and place.

The complete cast is as follows: Matt Dennant, James Harvey; The Girl of the Town, Ruth Schatz; The Plain Old Man, Howard Pope; The Policeman, Carter; The Fellow convict, Schreier; First Warder, E. Hope; Second Warder, H. Wilson; The Shingled Lady, Rosanna Todd; The Maid, Alice Vercoe; The Old Gentleman, Thornton Grier; The Four Trappers, O. R. Hewitt, Peggy McKay, E. Macdougall, Polly Schwab; The Man in Plus Fours, Horace Peck; His Wife, Harriet Colby; The Dartmoor Constable, Edward Hope; The Fox-Hunter, Humphrey Wilson; Two Laborers, R. MacCarthy, Carter; The Farmer, Jack Macdougall; The Little Girl, Evelyn Bryant; The Two Maiden Ladies, Margaret Miller and Helen Brown; The Parson, Patrick Beattie; The Bellringer, Henry Joseph.

Sociological Society To Hear Dr. Hughes

Present German Reactionary Forces To Be Outlined Tonight

Dr. Hughes formerly of the Department of Sociology here, who has just returned from a year in Germany, will at tomorrow's meeting of the Sociological Society outline the forces causing a reactionary movement in that country at the present time. This society has thus far this season made little headway but in tonight's address its members should have an exceptionally good topic for discussion.

The study of sociology is steadily gaining in favor at McGill and with a new phalanx of graduate research students, as well as the enthusiasm of some of the older recruits, the idea of a new science, hitherto overlooked, has been given to the general student body. No doubt several of the new students should be able to present some interesting sidelights on Canadian life, both in Montreal and in the West, at future meetings.

All those who are interested in the social sciences are invited to attend tonight's meeting at 8.00 p.m. in Strathcona Hall.

Want Bell Back

Western Students Hope For Renewal of Fracas

Unofficial reports from London-Ontario, last night stated that the United States students at McGill are hoping to have a renewal of the fracas which originated last fall on the occasion of the punning by a group of McGill students of a bell which the Westerners had brought to McGill as a mascot or good luck token.

It will be remembered that upon that occasion the Redmen were successful in wresting the prize token from the visitors and in holding it against all assaults. It is thought that it would be only sporting of the local men to give the original owners a chance to regain their property.

REPORTERS

Owing to the fact that tomorrow is a holiday a special arrangement has been made for covering assignments over the week-end. All reporters who work regularly on either Thursday or Sunday nights must sign the assignment book today (Thursday).

Combined Rehearsal Of Operetta Staged

Orchestra And Chorus Practised "Yeomen of the Guard" Last Night

EXECUTIVE SATISFIED

First Performance In Moyse Hall on December Thirteenth

Under the guidance of Mr. Irving Cooper the first combined rehearsal with chorus and orchestra of the "Yeomen of the Guard" took place last night in the Ballroom of the Union. The cast was comprised of over a hundred voices, male and female, and there were several soloists. The Orchestra was made up of about thirty-five pieces last night, and Mr. Cooper was very much pleased with the spirit and enthusiasm with which they performed. There was a large turnout, and the rehearsing went ahead smoothly.

There will be a rehearsal on Friday morning at 9.30 of the principals and chorus, as well as to start the stage work. The executive is confident that everything will be in working order when "The Yeomen of the Guard" takes the boards at Moyse Hall on December 13, to be played until December 17.

Tickets on Sale
Tickets have been on sale for some time, and may be obtained from any member of the Society. Tickets purchased from them will be exchangeable for regular tickets at the Union Box Office, after the 29th of November.

Students have been granted a reduction of 40 cents from the general rate, and may obtain their tickets for 65 cents.

The complete list of committees to look after the business and technical features of the operetta has been announced, and is as follows:

Committee List
Business Manager—Ralph Linton.
Tickets—Bob Oliver, Jean Taylor, Verne Estano, Robert Turnbull.
Stage Manager—Tom Calder.
Publicity—Allison Walsh.
House—Ernest McLean, Ralph Linton.

People's Forum Will Hear Dr. Ambedkar

Plight Of Untouchables In India To Be Described Sunday

"India, Gandhi, and the Untouchables" will be the topic of the address at the People's Forum next Sunday evening by Bhimrao Ramji Ambedkar.

Dr. Ambedkar possesses the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., D.Sc., is a member of the Bombay Legislative Council, and a delegate to the London Round Table Conference. His books, "The Evolution of Provincial Finance in British India," and "The Problem of the Rupee" are the standard works of modern Indian finance.

Yet the statesmen who use these words can have no dealing with him because he is a member of the ostracized Untouchables.

He is obliged to live in a slum quarter which is situated so that no breeze from it can blow upon anyone of higher caste, and he may not enter a temple or use a public well.

Dr. Ambedkar has written several books on caste in India and edits the official Untouchable Newspaper. He is striving to better the plight of countless of his class.

Student's Service

The regular Students' Service will be held this Sunday morning as usual, in the Divinity Hall Chapel, 3520 University Street. The guest preacher in charge of this week's service, will be Professor D. Ritchie Dean of the United Theological College.

To Go To New York

Sir Arthur Currie is going to New York next Tuesday evening. He will attend the annual meeting of the Trustees of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Learning, as well as the conference connected with the same.

Federated Charities Campaign Fails To Arrive At Objective

Collect Well Over Half Of Scheduled Amount However

HUTCHINS PRESIDENT

Actual Work Of Canvassing Performed By Class Executives

Although failing to reach the objective of $2,000, the students of McGill University succeeded in collecting about $1,300, or roughly two thirds of the intended amount, in this year's Federated Charities drive. Strenuous efforts were made on the part of class presidents in urging the class campaign representatives to keep after the students. The representatives as well as the collectors fulfilled their somewhat distasteful duty to the best of their ability.

The campaign was directed by John Hutchins who spared no effort to successfully terminate the drive. It must not be forgotten that the professors generously lent their support to the raising of this money.

R. V. C. Leads
The contributions were led by the Royal Victoria College, which realized $266.30. The Faculty of Arts followed closely with $258.55 while Commerce was able to exceed the amount allotted them. Medicine practically tied with Engineering in collections, the former reporting $225.55 and the latter $222.65.

The total amount exceeded last year's returns by the sum of $26.41 a fact which should in some measure compensate for the failure to reach the objective. Contributions received from the various faculties and schools, as reported at the close of the campaign are as follows:

Faculty	Quota	Collected
R. V. C.	$365.00	$266.30
Med.	349.00	224.55
Comm.	118.00	127.65

Mechanics' Lectures Will Start Tonight

Thirteen McGill Professors To Give Lectures During Series

The tenth series of popular lectures of the Mechanics Institute will start tonight at 8.15 p.m. when Col. Wilfred Bovey of McGill speaks on the "Arts to be eighteen lectures in all during which thirteen McGill professors will give addresses on various subjects.

The first six are as follows: November 17, "Old Houses in the Province of Quebec," Prof. Ramsay Traquair; November 24, "Half a Lifetime in the Old World and Half a Lifetime in the New," Emeritus Prof. William Caldwell; December 1, "Shakespeare," Rev. Prof. Harvey-Jellie.

Prof. Francis B. Lloyd will speak December 8 on "Costa Rica and Its Products." The following week James B. Thomson will have as the subject of an address, "In the Footsteps of Sir Walter Scott." This will complete the lectures to be given this year. On January 12 the addresses will be resumed, beginning with "A Trip Through China and Japan," by T. G. Turnbull. The series, free to the public and arranged in co-operation with McGill University, will be the department of extra-mural re-completed March 30.

Mining Bulletin

Orders for the Canadian Mining and Metallurgical Bulletin will be sent in during the next few days, according to a statement of R. K. Boright, secretary of the McGill Society last night. Students who wish to obtain the bulletin are advised to get in touch with Boright without delay.

Time of Meeting Changed

The next meeting of the Sociological Society will not be held, as scheduled, tonight but will take place instead tomorrow at 8.00 o'clock in Strathcona Hall when Dr. Hughes will speak on "The reactionary movement in Germany."

Nominations Desired For Coming Election

NOMINATIONS for faculty representatives to the Students' Executive Council must be handed in to the Secretary before noon on November 21, it was decided at a meeting of the Council held yesterday evening in the Union.

These nominations must be in writing and signed by at least ten members of the faculty which the nominee is to represent if elected. The successful candidates will take office for one year beginning January 1, 1933.

Nominees must be in their junior year.

One representative will be required from each of the Faculties of Arts and Science, Engineering, Medicine, Law, Dentistry, from the School of Commerce, from Royal Victoria College, and one from the Theological Colleges.

Elections will be held December 5.

Electrical Engineers Go To Beauharnois

Shown Construction Of Of Power House And Canal

TWO BUSSES FILLED

Big Turnout Indicates Great Interest Taken In Scheme

Yesterday afternoon, the Electrical Club paid a visit to the Beauharnois Power Development. On account of the great interest shown in the Club this year a large number were present. The two buses that had been chartered for this occasion contained many others beside the particular engineers concerned.

The visitors were shown around by two employees of the corporation and given many details of the construction and operation of the ten-generator units some of which are already in use. The students were then driven along the fifteen mile canal that connects the Lake St. Francis high-water to the power-house on Lake St.

Arts '35 Hold First Luncheon At Union

Choose Annual Board Representatives And Team Managers

Yesterday at one o'clock, Arts '35 held their first luncheon of the season in the Grill Room of the Union. Arnold Johnson, the class-president, presiding. Thirty members of the class were on hand, and after a hearty lunch, they adjourned to business.

Alex Gordon was elected as representative to the Annual Board. A report was read out, stating that Arts '35 had donated approximately $86 to the Federated Charities. The class decided that they should hold more and better luncheons in the future.

Class-debating, hockey and basketball were then discussed, and it was decided that managers should be elected, at a future date, for the hockey and basketball teams. It was also announced that there is an entry-list of thirty-two for the class debates.

B. C. Students Meet Tonight At Cabaret

Arrangements Have Been Made For Special Reserved Section

The annual re-union of the British Columbia Students will take place tonight at the "Ocher Maurice" Cabaret. The proceedings are scheduled to commence at ten o'clock and it is expected that many of the B. C. students will turn out for this gala event. Special arrangements have been made with Phil Maurice whereby the party will have a reserved section on the dance floor.

Originally the cost for this event was set at $2.00 per person, but it has now been reduced to $1.75. This is good news for all concerned, considering the fact that there is a depression in existence at this time. This charge covers dancing, supper and entertainment. The floor show promises to be of a high order and those in charge claim everyone should have a good time.

This function will be open to all people working in the city who came from British Columbia, regardless of whether or not they go to McGill University.

Commercial Society Hears Address Of Trade Commissioner

Sir Arthur Currie And Professors Guests At Luncheon

DUTIES OUTLINED

Executive Plans To Organize Dinners Every Fortnight

"The actual work of a Trade Commissioner is to develop the trade of the country to which he is sent," declared Mr. F. W. Field, British Trade Commissioner to Canada, in the course of an address on the work of Trade Commissioners, which he gave before the Commercial Society at their luncheon in the Union Grill Room yesterday noon.

Among the guests of the Society were Sir Arthur Currie, Professors Day, Sugars, Tait, Villard and Major Forbes.

The speaker, who was introduced by the president, John G. Fulcher, in addressing the assembly of approximately sixty-five, based his remarks largely upon personal experience in his work. In Canada, work must be carried on delicately; the instructions of the British Government being to refrain from taking any action that might in any way cause trouble to exporters or local manufacturers.

Commissioner's Duties

A Commissioner must be able to answer any questions put to him by manufacturers regarding possibilities of a market in the particular locality in which he is stationed. He must be familiar with banking laws, bankruptcy laws and credit conditions of his country. Reports must be sent to enquirers in the form of a formal business document to be used as such. A true picture of trade as it exists must be given and balance maintained between the different parts of the Empire. So far no Commissioner can be said to have run foul of the exporters in this country.

Qualifications

The qualifications for a Commissioner are varied. Primarily he must pass rigid examinations at Ottawa dealing with anything from credit to personal viewpoints on existing conditions. Great powers of observation are necessary as well as ability to absorb information from other people, sift it and return a good

Greek Educational Problems Discussed

Prof. F. Clarke Addresses Montreal Classical Club At R.V.C.

"Discipline in Greek education, as Plato saw it, was consistent with life and nature" states Prof. F. Clarke in his address to the Montreal Classical Club at R.V.C. last night. Greek education in general adopted the standpoint of animating ideas, it failed, and its failures have been handed down to the present day.

There are three outstanding characteristics in the Greek educational system, the foremost of which is discipline. Discipline, not as we think of it today, with all its obnoxious aspects, but consistent with life and nature offering freedom. The second is an immediacy or presentness of contact with life and closeness to nature. Today we segregate children, place them in a class-room as far from the realities of life as it is possible, then when they go out to face life they are unprepared and get tangled up in all the false conceptions they have mastered.

When the Greeks were put to the supreme test of expanding their educational system to meet the movement of the world and the demand of the lower classes for a place in the sun they could not face it and their educational system was a failure. Today we have not got a set order into which to fit children, therefore we must be more intellectual and critical.

A liberal education, one rooted in nature and things eternal, is constant—it is only its form which changes with the ages. Greek education fitted a small community—the city state, and even in that small area it only touched a small percentage of the people. They did not educate those whom they did not think adequate for it. At present it is essayed to have it reach everybody.

The educated class, then as now, fell into two groups—those who segregate themselves from the rest of the world, the cloistered scholar and those who become the slave of some chosen branch of education.

Competition Opened For Student Songs

STUDENTS here will have a McGill marching song, as well as a special "Students' Song," both with original words and music, if a competition for this purpose bears fruit.

A committee, consisting of Dean Douglas Clarke, Colonel Bovey, Lawrence Hart, R. B. Shaw and Mr. Glasco, which was appointed by the Students' Society some time ago, will shortly announce complete details of this competition, which is open to all undergraduates, graduates, and members of the staff, of McGill University.

The contest calls for the music, with or without words, of a marching song, and a students' song. The closing date for efforts is January 31, 1933. Judges will be Dean Clarke, Mr. Harry Norris, Lawrence Hart and J. Ray Caron.

Orchestra To Play Mozart's Symphony

Programme Also Includes Handel Overture In D Minor

CLARKE CONDUCTOR

Student Tickets Again Available At Reduced Rates

Mozart's 35th Symphony in D, the Hafner, will be featured at the next concert of the Montreal Orchestra on Sunday afternoon at three, at His Majesty's Theatre. Mr. Douglas Clark, Dean of the Faculty of Music will conduct the 70 musicians, as usual, through a program of varied music, one of the numbers being one of the latest additions to the Orchestra's repertoire.

The program will include the Handel Overture in D minor, Peter Warlock's arrangement for string orchestra of an old suite of tunes entitled Capriol, the Mozart Symphony in D, the new item, "En Saga" a tone poem by the Finnish national composer, Sibelius, and "L'Apprenti Sorcier" by Dukas.

Mozart Symphony

The Mozart symphony, which was first played by the Orchestra during its last season, was received with much praise by the Montreal critics, and was chosen for the only concert ever given by this group outside of a regular theatre, that held at the Ballroom of the Mount Royal Hotel, at the close of its second season.

Surgeon Of Urology To Address Meeting

McGill Medical Society Will Hear Doctor F. S. Patch

The McGill Medical Society, whose next meeting is scheduled for 8.00 o'clock on Monday in the Assembly Hall of the Medical Building, has secured Dr. F. S. Patch as guest speaker at this meeting. Dr. Patch, who is the surgeon in charge of the department of Urology at the Montreal General Hospital, will speak on "Cutting for the stone."

Other business of the meeting will include Case Reports, which have been a source of keen interest this year so far. Refreshments will also be served and the usual business matters considered.

Sometime during December the society will hear an address by another well-known speaker, Dr. Stuart, surgeon and professor at the Bellevue Hospital in New York.

Burglary Attempt Fails In Engineering Building

At a quarter to ten on Tuesday night, a great calm brooded over the Engineering Building of this university. The corridors were plunged in darkness; here and there a feeble light twinkled from a laboratory, indicative of some earnest soul burning the midnight oil; in the janitor's office, the watchman sat peacefully in a corner, while Harry Grimsdale, who has presided over the destinies of the Engineers for many years, was working at his desk.

Suddenly Harry heard the door open—someone entering the building—but no one passed his office, which is at the head of the stairway which it is necessary to ascend in order to gain access to the building. This was unusual, so Harry went out into the corridor to see what was afoot.

Someone brushed past him rapidly, and disappeared in the gloom of the hall. Harry then proceeded to the Architecture Room, where he knew there was a student working late, but on questioning him, found out that no one had disturbed his studies.

Still feeling that all was not well, Harry started a line of investigation which led him into several offices, and in the course of the hunt, noticed that the door of the Dean's office was ajar, when it should have been firmly closed.

Opening this door cautiously, he stretched out his hand to turn on the (Continued on Page Four)

Red Hockey Team Loses First Game

Canadiens Defeat McGill By 4-3 Score In Opening Senior Group Match

SIR ARTHUR CURRIE INAUGURATES SEASON

Royals Trim Columbus By 5-1 In Second Half Of Double-Header

SENIOR Group Hockey made its 1932 bow last night, with Sir Arthur Currie facing the puck and officially opening the season. Sir Arthur assisted by President Ken Stewart and J. A. de Lalanne. Canadiens chalked up the first victory of the season, emerging from a close game against McGill on the long end of a 4-3 score. The red team, not yet at full strength received a further set-back when the Faculty prevented Frank Shaughnessy, jr. from lining up with his team-mates, but put up a great battle, serving notice that they will be right in the title hunt from start to finish.

Royals Win

The second match of the twin bill saw Royals take the measure of the recently returned Columbus club by a 5-1 score. The Royals, performing for the first time in their new colours, gave the Irishmen little chance to show their wares but the green shirts are sure to provide plenty of trouble before many games have been played. Gil Paynter was pressed into service to fill the gap left by Shaughnessy's absence and along with Gordie Melkejohn turned in a very creditable performance on the red defence.

Canadiens Score Twice

Robert tallied the first counter for Canadiens, batting in Arcand's rebound shortly after the start of the game. The redmen were slow to get started, Farquharson and McGill being the only ones able to make any impression on the hard-hitting rear-guard of Brunet and Arcand. Canadiens, on the other hand, commenced a rapid fire attack and managed to beat Powers a second time seven minutes later, the puck sliding in under the tall custodian's skate after a hard shot from Pilon's stick. Gordie Crutchfield and Farquharson combined on a nice effort but Arcambault kicked the rubber out when "Crutch" shot from close in.

The second period was hardly a minute old before the Frenchmen added another counter to their total, Gaudette beating Powers on a hard shot from just outside the defence after a pretty solo rush. Gil Paynter was given an enforced rest for boarding Arcand heavily. Jack McGill and Berger followed several minutes later for mixing it a little too freely. Brunet was benched and McGill commenced to press their one man advantage to the limit. Jack McGill returned to the fray, to join the swarming red team in the vicinity of the Canadiens' net. He immediately made his presence felt by breaking up a Canadiens rush, carrying the puck into the corner and then handing Kenny Farmer a clean pass which the Ste. Anne atom burned into the twine without any delay.

The diminutive winger had been a source of considerable worry to Archambault all the way with his unceasing efforts. He continued to fire away at the net and had a beautiful scoring opportunity spoiled by the whistle.

Montreal, Thursday, Nov. 10, 1932

The Players' Club

TONIGHT the Players' Club offers to a student and city audience in Moyse Hall the first of its two efforts for the present season. The quality of the play itself rests in the hands of the cast, workers, directors, and the gods,—in by no means descending order of importance. There is another feature necessary, however, to a successful production. Namely, an audience. Without one, the most brilliant performance can hardly be counted a complete success.

There can be little doubt that the Club deserves a large attendance. Its presentations have usually been of a high order, including masterful interpretations of The Insect Play and The Witch. The reputation that these two established has never been seriously threatened, and last year's "From Morn to Midnight" and "The Road to Rome" were favourably received by a good many followers of amateur dramatics.

But though this reputation merits large audiences, it is still doubtful whether these large audiences will be forthcoming. Other circumstances tend to prevent them. Publicity outside the campus was begun lamentably late. Moyse Hall was not available at opportune times. Yet these disadvantages can in no way detract from the dramatic or histrionic value of "Escape," and those who do know that it is coming off, those who are able to attend, are well advised to be present.

Apart from the ideal involved,—that of giving generous support to worthwhile student dramatics—there are more mercenary reasons why undergraduates should give their money to the Players' Club. They are obviously giving it to themselves. Should the Club suffer a deficit, the Students' Society suffers. Seniors, indeed, are exempt from worry on this score, for the sins of a season are visited upon succeeding ones. But those who are anticipating a year or more at McGill will do well to help put student finances on a sound basis.

Professors

UNIVERSITY professors are a long suffering class. They are continually coming in for criticism of the most varied and diverse sort. On the one hand they are charged with failing in their charge of educating the coming generation, on the other with corrupting modern youth with revolutionary doctrines.

An often reiterated complaint is that a great many professors know their subject, but are incapable of imparting their knowledge to the students under them. The criticism is undeniably justified in many cases. There can scarcely be a student at McGill who has not experienced one such during his time at the university.

These professors usually fall into a definite class. They are, on the whole, the more brilliant of the men in their particular field and they have gravitated to the universities as the only places where they can find congenial work and surroundings. The reason for their lack of teaching ability lies in their too intimate knowledge of their subject and an inability to comprehend the lower mental calibre of the students under them.

To suggest that such men be removed from the staffs of our universities is to reveal a lamentable narrowness of vision or else an equally lamentable lack of comprehension of the purpose of the universities.

Today, especially in America, universities are becoming more and more strictly educational centres, with the only object in view that of teaching as many students as possible as much knowledge as they can possibly absorb in four years. As far as this is concerned they are probably efficient.

It is our opinion, however, that a true university should be a centre of culture—a place where not only is old knowledge taught to new students but where new knowledge is constantly being acquired. It is universities built on this plan which have become famous the world over and have left their mark on civilization. Incidentally, they usually succeed in teaching their students quite as well as those of the other class mentioned above.

To a university of this sort the type of professors discussed above are essential. It is they who direct the teachers and plan the courses, making changes in the methods and curricula as new developments demand. It is they who give to a university that prestige which makes its name known throughout the world.

THE BOOKSHELF

... And Now It Is Geoffrey Chaucer

"Chaucer" by G. K. Chesterton Farrar & Rinehart (Oxford University Press, Toronto). $2.50.

(Farrar and Rinehart)

FOR thirty years Mr. Chesterton has been giving to the public books on all sorts of subjects, and long ago everybody formed a pretty definite notion of what to expect from him. The Chestertonian paradox is celebrated, and Mr. Chesterton is the leading exponent of the famous proposition that "Whatever is, is not." This modern world in which we live is a crazy world, and the only sane persons in the lunatic asylum are Mr. Chesterton and his friend Mr. Bello.

All this is helped out by the assumption of a Pre-Reformation age in which sanity reigned and life. Of course much of this medievalism everybody knew perfectly well what was the meaning of the invention of the alleged crazy modern mind that thought it discovered the middle ages at the end of the Eighteenth Century. Mr. Chesterton is in some respects a belated romantic of a century ago.

So it was inevitable that he would publish a book on Chaucer. But it is greatly to be regretted that he did not take the trouble to master his subject before writing it. In fact he has produced a book of as little use to students of Chaucer as William Godwin's. And he has not Godwin's excuse that accurate information was not then accessible.

Mr. Chesterton seems to have relied for his scholarship mainly upon Pollard's compact, interesting, but now largely obsolete "Chaucer Primer." One does not demand of a man of letters pedantic accuracy and concern for the minutiae of scholarship, but downright nonsense and gross inaccuracy are reprehensible.

There was a time when many people thought that Chaucer almost invented the English language. No informed person believes that nowadays. Yet Mr. Chesterton begins his preface, "If I were writing this in French as I should be if Chaucer had not chosen to write in English." It would be nearer the truth to say in Chestertonian fashion that Chaucer wrote in English because we speak English. By the middle of the Fourteenth Century it was unmistakable that English was going to be the language of all classes of English society.

Or to take another illustration. Speaking of Cressida, Mr. Chesterton says, "I know that Chaucer does once, in a sort of noble madness, snatch at a sort of fatalism as an excuse for his heroine chiefly because he cannot think of any other excuse." The truth is that Chaucer cannot come anywhere near the subject of free will and predestination, without dropping everything else to talk about metaphysical and theological subtleties. Plainly the problem fascinated him.

These two examples will suffice. But many others could be mentioned to demonstrate Mr. Chesterton's lack of equipment for this particular task. To be sure, ignorance of this sort does not preclude a sensitive and sympathetic critic from writing a stimulating and useful book. Unfortunately, Mr. Chesterton frequently allows his anti-Semitic anti-American, and anti-Protestant prejudices to come to the surface. Narrow-mindedness of this sort is disastrous in any discussion of the humane and tolerant Chaucer.

Mr. Chesterton says that his book is intended for those who know even less of Chaucer than he does. If this is to be taken seriously, his audience is of very small dimensions. One suspects, however, that Mr. Chesterton is not so much concerned with persuading his readers to enjoy Chaucer, as he is with using Chaucer as a club for beating his own age over the head.

ECHOES OF LONDON

(By Robert Picard)

THE London Press has been very loud-spoken in its praises of the late Professor Waugh. That he was esteemed perhaps more highly in England and Scotland than in Canada is indicated by numerous letters published in the Times, extracts of which are quoted below. Professor Powicke, Regius Professor of Modern History at Oxford, writes:

"Waugh was a very fine scholar and teacher and a man of real intellectual integrity.... perhaps his most remarkable work was the continuation and completion of the late J. H. Wylie's History of King Henry V. England has not had a sounder or more reliable scholar, and the Manchester History School is rightly proud of him. He was a sensitive, affectionate, modest man, and a delightful companion. Now and then he was inclined to take pleasure in his own austerity and to give play to a caustic tongue, but, while he might embarrass his friends, he could never shake their appreciation of his goodness and his learning."

PROFESSOR E. F. JACOB, Professor of Mediaeval History at Manchester University, speaks of Professor Waugh thus:

"The death of Professor Waugh is a serious loss to mediaeval history, and to fifteenth century studies in particular.... There were few men more to be trusted in the sphere of mediaeval political and diplomatic history.... He had a scrupulous and accurate mind, which never, however, fussed over irrelevant detail; he was critical without being destructive, and he could draw a broad outline without a misplaced or over-stated generalization.... He will be sorely missed by all workers in the last period of the Middle Ages and by his Manchester friends in particular."

PROFESSOR BASIL WILLIAMS, Professor of History at Edinburgh and formerly of McGill University writes:

"In Professor Waugh McGill University has lost a teacher of history he could ill spare.... From the first he contributed greatly to the improvement of history teaching there by his helpful sympathy with his pupils' difficulties and the genial sense of humour which illuminated his lectures. It is to be feared that his death may be partly due to his unremitting devotion to his work.... He always believed that in the interests of McGill and to maintain his high standard of teaching it was essential for him to keep the stimulus of original work of his own."

And so another prominent McGill teacher passes into the realm of History.

ENGLAND thinks that France's fears are all Boche! according to a London paper.

THE Times startled the British Isles some time ago by appearing in brand new clothes, as it were. The Gothic heading "The Times" on the front page has been substituted by a similar titling in Roman lettering thereby shattering all public faith in the ultra-conservatism of this world-famous newspaper. In addition, the Times now boasts that it has invented its own type which is supposed to be particularly adapted to eliminate any eye strain that might result from reading in trains, aeroplanes, trams, etc. Press comment from all over the world speaks very favourably of the innovation. Outside of a new titling and new type the Times is still the same old breakfast table friend and retains its pre-eminence as London's best collection of essays on news of the day.

THE Sunday Express claims that the trouble with Germany's finances today is that they are not up to the mark!

PARLIAMENT is getting quite a roasting in many of the newspapers, the opinion current in many circles being that the British delegates gave Canada too much at Ottawa this summer. The Press welcome the Agreements as a step in the right direction towards greater intra-Empire trade, and a subsequent lowering or tariff barriers.

THE average Londoner's idea of the cost of "central heating" seems to be about two shillings per bottle.

THE London School of Economics boasts of an elaborately-furnished "Founders' Room" on the fifth floor of the new wing where students and professors may join in quiet conversation together. The room would seem to appear to be too "high brow" for the average student as the mixed common room where professors do not intrude possesses greater popularity and density of traffic.

A MEMORIAL meeting commemorating the late Graham Wallas, distinguished British author, was recently held at the School and prominent citizens invited to speak. These included the director, Sir William Beveridge, Sir Josiah Stamp, and Lord Passfield (Sydney Webb), who eulogized Wallas in the warmest tones.

PROFESSOR Culliton and the McGill colony in London are following the football season with the keenest anxiety as the result of recent reverses which have reached our ears.

THE THEATRES PRESENT

His Majesty's Theatre

The Scottish Musical Comedy Company present "The Cotter's Saturday Night" Monday matinee and evening and "The Bonnie Brier Bush" Tuesday matinee and evening, November 14th and 15th, respectively, at His Majesty's Theatre.

More than three thousand performances of "The Cotter's Saturday Night" have been given in every state of the United States east of the Rocky Mountains.

The first production of the Scottish Musical Comedy Company was Mr. Daniels' arrangement of Burns' "Tam O' Shanter." This was followed in 1912 by adaptation of Burns' "The Cotter's Saturday Night" and later an arrangement of Ian MacLaren's "The Bonnie Brier Bush."

"The Cotter's Saturday Night" has received unusual popular acclaim because of its common appeal. Throughout the production holds closely to the suggestion of the poem. Its peculiar charm is its wholesale simplicity and naturalness. It is a picture of Scottish home life in the days of Burns and applicable to many an humble cot in the lowlands.

Capitol Theatre

Marked by one of the finest performances of John Barrymore's career and a sensational performance by a newcomer to the screen, Katharine Hepburn, "A Bill of Divorcement," starting Friday at the Capitol Theatre as the leading feature, is exceptional entertainment. The second feature is "Night After Night," with George Raft, Constance Cummings and Wynne Gibson. Barrymore's vivid portrayal of the man who returns, semi-sane, to his home after seventeen or eighteen years is equal to the best traditions of his distinguished family. His uncertain, hesitant walk, alone, marks his characterization as one of the best pieces of acting of the year. The delicacy of the mental balance, one moment on the verge of insanity, and the next on the verge of sanity, is the work of an artist.

Imperial Theatre

Dances in their most fascinating conception, beautiful songs, a fascinating story with a great touch of romance, form a pleasing ensemble in "Le Prince Charmant," the operetta that starts on the screen of the Imperial next Saturday. Kate de Nagy, one of the most promising young stars in European cinematography, leads a cast in which one will remark the popular silhouettes of Lucien Baroux, Marc Danter, Charles Faillot, beautiful Monique Casty, and many other well known stars.

A special prologue to the picture, the weekly news, animated cartoons, and a good comedy will complete this great program, one of the best ever to appear in France-Film picture houses.

Cinema de Paris

"L'Aiglon" comes back to our screens and will start, on Saturday, another week on the screen of the Cinema de Paris. Such was the decision taken by the directors of France-Film after the brilliant success registered by this wonderful production during the last weeks.

At the start of October, "L'Aiglon" beat every record. The picture was taken to make a sensational opening of French Talking Pictures in Ontario. One knows that the Governor-General presided this important Premiere. Quebec, like Ottawa, received with enthusiasm this masterly realization of Rostand's epic.

Palace Theatre

A brilliant comedy, stimulating and hilariously funny, and a technical achievement of rare distinction, is "Trouble in Paradise," an Ernst Lubitsch production which opens at the Palace Saturday, with Miriam Hopkins, Kay Francis and Herbert Marshall heading the cast. "Trouble in Paradise" is the story of a super-crook played by Herbert Marshall with the manners of a prince, who preys smoothly upon European society. When he ultimately meets Miriam Hopkins, his feminine counterpart they team up, professionally and matrimonially. Several delightful short subjects complete the programme.

Loew's Theatre

Thiffany Thayer's sensational novel "Thirteen Women" with Irene Dunne and Ricardo Cortez in the leading roles, is the feature screen presentation at Loew's Theatre commencing Saturday. An entertaining and colorful vaudeville program is headed by Hal Sand's Hollywood Revue, featuring Costello, Lee & Geraldine, Marge Green, Three Pearls and Three Bryne Sisters as well as Oscar Loraine, the "Violin Nuttist" in an unusual comedy act. "Thirteen Women," deals with thirteen women caught in the mystic spell of modern day sorcery, their lives and loves entwined and guided by a strange fate. Astrology, black magic, sinister and malicious suggestion all become factors in this most compelling drama mystery of interwoven lives. An overture under the direction of Edmund Sanborn and several short subjects complete the program.

Correspondence

Oxford Group

To the Editor,
McGill Daily.

Dear Sir:—
Referring to the letter signed Robert A. Kerr in the McGill Daily of November 9th in which it is stated: "The Oxford Group, by the way has no connection with the Oxford Movement instituted to establish the Roman Church in England." I beg to take exception to the latter portion of the sentence. Anyone who is acquainted with the history of the Church of England, and especially with the history of the Oxford Movement, the centenary of which will be celebrated in 1933, will realise the erroneous nature of the statement that "the Oxford Movement was instituted to establish the Roman Church in England." It is true that Newman, one of the originators of the Movement, seceded to the Roman Catholic Church, owing to the intolerant persecution which he suffered. But how many remained in the Church of England?—Pusey, Keble, Froude, Lowder, Pollock, Stanton, Tooth—names too numerous to mention—who by the example of their saintly lives brought back to men the desire for personal holiness.

There was absolutely no desire or intention on the part of the leaders of the Oxford Movement, which began with Keble's assize sermon at Oxford on July 14th, 1833, "to institute the Roman Church in England." The Church of England stands by its own inherent right to be part of "the one holy apostolic Church," reaching back to the apostles and to Christ Himself. True, during the centuries the Church has outwardly become divided through schism into three branches—Roman, Eastern and Anglican; but none the less is each a branch of the true stream, tracing back to the same Divine Source.

The Oxford Movement brought back to the members of the Church of England, when the lamp of faith was low, a realization of its Divine origin; its means of grace through the Sacraments instituted by Jesus Christ; its historic and interrupted Apostolic Succession. Men realized afresh the need of Sacramental Grace in their individual lives, and made more frequent use of Sacramental Confession and the reception of the Blessed Sacrament of the Body and Blood of Christ. Out of this grew a greater love for our Lord present in the Blessed Sacrament of the Altar, and a new desire to give Him honour and adoration, with all the dignity of worship. So Anglo-Catholics were dubbed "ritualists" and bitter persecution arose by those who also thought that the Movement desired "to institute Roman Catholicism in England." But as with the Evangelical Revival which preceded it we can say of the Oxford Movement as we go forward to the keeping of its centenary: "If this had been of men its influence would have perished long ago, but if it be of God who shall overthrow it?"

—ANGLO-CATHOLIC.

The Editor,
McGill Daily.
Sir,— Today's issue of the "Daily" contains a report of some remarks of mine on "Education in the Soviet Union," against the last sentence of which I must enter emphatic protest. It says, "The Red Student" published a picture of Mr. Forsey with a group of (other) Communists, but this issue was barred entry into Canada."

In the first place your reporter has evidently misunderstood one of my rather feeble witticisms and then allowed his imagination to run away with him. I have not the faintest idea whether the "Red Student" ever published a picture of me, or, if it did, whether the issue was even sent to Canada, much less stopped at the frontier.

Second, the suggestion that I am a member of the Communist Party is ludicrously untrue. Indeed your reporter probably intended it as a joke. Unfortunately there are people who might take his words seriously, with most disagreeable consequences. Under section 98 of the criminal code, membership in the Communist Party is a crime carrying a penalty of anything up to twenty years' imprisonment, and the burden of proof is on the accused. To call anyone a Communist, therefore, is to accuse him of a serious crime of which he may have great difficulty in clearing himself. To make such an accusation groundlessly is probably libellous and actionable.

Yours,
EUGENE FORSEY.

McGill Men Prepare To Get Western

Senior Rugby Squad Travels To London For Season's Last Game

VARSITY AND QUEEN'S ENGAGE IN TORONTO

WITH nothing at stake except a removal from cellar position, the senior Rugbyists invade Western on Saturday grimly determined to wipe up the Little Stadium with the Mustangs. A cheery note was struck last night when a cable came from Western U. bearing the news that the hosts would receive the Redmen with open arms, but would treat them in a manner ill-befitting of hosts.

"Realizing as they do that the defeat in Montreal practically robbed them of a chance to challenge the Blue's supremacy, the Mustangs are out to avenge the most disappointing defeat in years and the Redmen can look forward to a very hot reception at the Little Stadium."

What Might Happen

The scrappy Queen's team is something of a problem. According to all the laws of football they should fall to Varsity. Of course, the latter have the crown, win lose or draw. On the assumption of Queen's loss, the Redmen would end up in a deadlock with Western for second berth if they take the Mustangs on Saturday. A draw would place them in third place with Queen's, if Queen's lose.

If Varsity fall prey to Queen's rushing tactics, their supremacy is not challenged, but Queen's ends up second, if McGill beats Western.

With the Mustangs in tip-top shape, —so goes the cable received last night—the prospects for a real hard struggle are keen. Mike Valeriote, Paterson, and Duncan, three of the Western crew's stalwarts, are fully recovered from their injuries. The rest of the Western squad is intact and raring to go. Bill Bryant, Gordie Awe, Jimmy McDermott, Stew Ward, Pony Stul, Jack Quigley, Silvia Valeriote, Don Ferguson, Banty McLachlin, Lyle McKay, Gillies, Duncan, Muga, Rocky, Veront, Tweeder, Schnarr, and Stapleton will comprise the Western line-up.

Redmen Are Strong

The Redmen are pretty well intact with all parts of the squad in good form. No major injuries were sustained in the tilt with the Bueboys, although there were plenty of bruises evident. The McGillads promise a mighty struggle on Saturday.

On the other hand, 13 of Western's crew will play for their Alma Mater for the last time, that number of the squad graduating next year. With this in mind, they hope to make the game one that will be long remembered.

Probable Line-up

McGill will most likely field the following team: Young, Stevens, Riddell, Craig, Krukowski, Halpenny, Pierce, Sangster, Letourneau, Wilson, Newton, Griffiths, Hammond, Olker, Hilliard, Fyshe, Lee, Markham, Bishop, Freeman, and Robertson.

Polo Seniors Play Columbus Tonight

Redmen Complete First Half Of League Schedule

WITH half the league season practically completed in city water polo, McGill senior poloists have still to register a win. One victory might not seem a large order, but consideration must be made that only four teams comprise the city senior polo league. High class competition therefore, features every game, with the result that the McGill seniors have so far been jugged out of a chance for a win. Tonight, however, they have an opportunity to redeem themselves when they meet their old foes, the Columbus aggregation. In the last meeting between the two, the Redmen emerged on the end of the somewhat ignoble score of 11-2. But tonight's game promises something better as the seniors have shown improvement since that time.

Yesterday's practice was somewhat reminiscent of old times, with a few of last years veterans, in the persons of Mel Doig and Chick Davis, putting in an appearance for the first time this season. A brisk practice featured the workout, with the Seconds providing the opposition. Less than a month remains to the first intercollegiate fixture with Toronto, and the Redmen need all the practice they can get, especially since the Varsity squad are the present intercollegiate champions. The championship was the result of a decisive win and a tie on the part of the Blue-boys in the two games of the intercollegiate series last year.

No Victories Yet

Incidentally, the Senior's apparent lack of ability to score a victory in the city league schedule can easily be accounted for. In water polo, a

SOCCER SECONDS TO PLAY SCHOOLS

Game at Stadium Tomorrow —Arts-Com. Vs. Aggies at Macdonald Saturday

THE postponed soccer game between the Seconds and the High School representative team, will be struck off the waiting list tomorrow morning on the Upper Field. Kick-off will take place after the two-minute silence at 11:00 a.m. The High Schools will have as strong a side out against McGill as they had last year, when they defeated the Redmen by 3-2. On that occasion, Brand, of Montreal West High, took the hat-trick at McGill's expense, and should bear a lot of watching in tomorrow's match, as he proved the High School League's leading scorer this year.

The school champions this season are Montreal High, the majority of whose men will be represented in the match tomorrow. Captain Dorfman of the titleholders, is a tricky forward, though lacking in height and weight. Most of the school team's men will require careful attention by the Redmen, if they wish to take tomorrow's game.

Few Games Played

This year, contrary to custom, very few games had been arranged for the Seconds. Consequently they will have to fight hard to win this game from the school lads. The following men are requested to be at the Stadium at 10:15 tomorrow morning: Darby, Archer, Gamble, Andrews, Luxton, Kelloway, Doublet, Cooper, Smart, Lynn, Candlish, Simpson, Ostle, Poch

Dunlop Trophy Race To Be Run Friday—Enter Two Teams

Goode, Jamieson, Frankton, Stote, And Sampson Represent First Team

RED TEAM STRONG

TOMORROW morning, immediately after the annual two-minute silence, nearly two score men will start on the Dunlop Trophy Race—an annual event held on this day, and for the last two years won by McGill runners. The course will be a five-mile one, starting at the North Branch Y.M.C.A. Building, on the corner of Park Ave. and St. Viateur Street, and will extend through the streets of Outremont.

This type of race should be especially suited to Clarrie Frankton, member of the Red harrier brigade, and holder of the record for this particular course, which he established in last year's Dunlop race. Coach Van Wagner has entered two teams this year, the first consisting of the four point-winners at the intercollegiate harrier event—Goode, Jamieson, Frankton and Stote — and Gerry Sampson, stellar track performer. The second team will consist of Swift, Billingsley, Wanless, Ball and Finn.

Both teams may expect stiff oppo-

McGill Meet Maroons In Q.R.F.U. Tilt

Westward Need Victory To Snatch Group Title From Rangers

REDMEN APPEAR IN LAST GAME

A TITLE-ASPIRING Westward crew clash with McGill Seconds at the Royal Avenue grounds Saturday afternoon. This is the final game under the auspices of the Q.R.F.U. and will see the decks cleared for the group champions to carry on.

Westward are anxious to have the silverware, emblematic of the championship, repose in their chest after a lapse of two years. Only a victory Saturday will accomplish that as Ottawa are leading the league at present and the Maroons need two points to over- come them.

Redmen Ready

McGill, encumbered by no such lofty ambitions, are anxious too, to record a victory. As they dropped their first game to Westward a victory would give them an even break in the two-game series. And as C.N.R. could do no better than win one of their two games with the Redmen, the latter could claim to be on a par with any intermediate team in the city.

The Red team are undoubtedly the surprise packet of the Q.R.F.U. Entered with the sole intention of seasoning inexperienced players for senior competition, they were the objects of much condolence for the bad lickings they were going to receive at the hands of the other entries.

McGill No Set-Up

But they exploited this myth in the very first game. A confident Westward crew, which came to the Stadium prepared to mop up the greensward with the Redmen, was surprised and dismayed to be outplayed and outfought by this same Red team, and only eked out a close victory, 8-7.

C.N.R. was the next squad to feel the prowess of this spirited and fighting team, and barely managed to split the series, each team winning on its home grounds. Ottawa was the only team to enjoy any measure of success against McGill, winning handily in Ottawa and nosing out the McGillads here.

Stars on Team

The Intermediates have already justified their existence by sending up one of their players, Bishop, to senior company. At present their best bets are Byers, whose lofty holds match those of the league's best, and Kenny, whose plunging and tackling have earned him much praise. The third stalwart on the backfield, Ditzkofsky, is one of the shiftest broken-field runners in the game and with a little more experience should take him a long way.

The strongest feature of the Redmen, however, is the line. Expected to crumble before the furious onslaughts of their adversaries, they more than held their own, and were one of the factors for the team's remaining in the thick of each fight. The downfield brigade of Carsley, Carswell and Hebert is exceedingly alert and the opposing backfielders have taken few liberties with them.

Opponents in Fair Trim

Westward are somewhat battered from the game with C.N.R. last Saturday and Talpis and Murray are doubtful starters. However, the brilliant

Law - Arts Engage To Decide Champs

Last Inter-Faculty Rugby Tilt Promises To Be Bitter Contest

The game of the season is scheduled to take place today at 3:30 when the two leaders of the Interfaculty Rugby League cross cleats to decide who is cock o' the roost. Deadlocked with four wins and a loss each, both Arts and Law plan a fight to the finish for the crown.

In the entire campaign, the Classicists have only dropped their colours once, defeating all comers, but falling victim to the Lawyers rushing tactics. This puts Law in a favourable light, it would seem, but the Arts footballers claim that it was their day off. Law, on the other hand, claim that they have a repeat on the program for today.

Commerce Defaulted

Law acquired their fourth win on Tuesday when the scheduled game with Commerce failed to come off owing to the number of injuries on that team. This default put them on a par with Arts. The defeat of Law came through the Sawbones, the latter pulling a trump to topple the Lawyers to the tune of two to zero, some two weeks ago.

The teams to start for today's game to determine the champs will probably be:

Law: Hemens, Robertson, Rubin, Stewart, Porteous, Mitchell, Gales, Mullaly, Kaufman, Caldwell, Black, Sellar, Cohen, Patterson.

Arts: Henderson, Duff, Wilson, G. Crutchfield, Beddoes, Brenhouse, Dixon, Maxwell, Calder, Denton, Wayland.

The McGill University Players' Club takes great pleasure in announcing the production of Galsworthy's "Escape," especially as he is so well-known here in Montreal. No other one of his plays has enjoyed such a success in London and New York, and while not of an experimental nature it is sufficiently modern for Players' Club standards.

Three goal lead right after the opening of the third frame, although the decision was disputed by the McGill men who claimed that the whistle had blown and that the goal should not have been allowed. Hughie Farquharson got into scoring position but was tripped by Arcand who was immediately waved to the penalty box. The red squad launched a desperate attack, with Farquharson, McGill and Crutchfield repeatedly driving hard shots at Archambault.

Mid-way through the session Gordie Crutchfield put the team right back into the running, beating Archambault twice within a few minutes. Canadiens were short-handed at the time, two of their members being with the timers when McGill's speedy winger beat Archambault on a pass from Farmer. Arcand was still in the cooler when "Little Crutch" repeated, taking Farquharson's pass to reduce the Frenchmen's lead to a single goal.

The fans were cheering wildly as McGill fought to tie up the score but the Canadiens took no chances, dealing carefully with the redmen who were fighting a battle against time. The Bellmen hemmed Doc Clements' gang behind their own blue line for the last few minutes but the red, white and blue team managed to preserve their narrow margin to the end, though penalties threatened to provide the necessary break for a tying counter.

Team which has worked together for several seasons with the same members returning year after year, is the team which makes its presence felt in the league. The McGill seniors are invariably depleted every season due to graduation, necessitating the promotion of junior material to fill the gaps. The material is probably just as good, but the team has not the advantage of having worked together for a season or two.

Both Red teams usually go into action the same night, but the juniors have no scheduled game for tonight but play again on Monday evening. Filling out the program for this evening, a junior tilt between the Montreal Swimming Club and Columbus Reds is scheduled.

The following seniors are requested to report to the Columbus pool at 8:15 for the game: Wayland, Shaw, Stein, Shragovitch, Cross, Shapiro, McLean, French, Davis, Dolg.

Lights, when it was rudely seized, and a person or persons unknown grappled fiercely with him in the darkness. Undaunted by this sudden assault, Harry went after his man, and, getting a wicked hold on his attacker's wrist, twisted the man's arm with accuracy and force, compelling him to yield.

Dragging the intruder out into the corridor, Harry was reinforced by two late comers to the Engineering building; the burglar turned out to be a man of considerable size. The allies held him while Harry telephoned the police. The man made no statement that is printable, and it has since been ascertained that he has no previous police record. He had no time to lay hands upon anything of value.

Morning Student Service to be held in the Divinity Hall Chapel, 3520 University Street, will be Professor D. L. Ritchie, Dean of the United Theological College.

sition from the other clubs represented in this race. Berry of M.A.A.A. is expected to give the Redmen a run for their money. This is to be the latter's last event of the year, and as Jeff Goode is graduating next year, it will probably be his last year for McGill. Goode has won many points for the track and harrier clubs, and is expected to vie with his team-mate Charlie Frankton for major honors in tomorrow's race. The first three men in will be awarded shields by the committee in charge of this annual race.

Louis and shown the parts to be used for governmental navigation.

Transformers
The transformers on the roof of the powerhouse, used for the purpose of distributing the generated current to the various local plants, are the largest yet made in Canada. A large part of these power buildings are still under construction, certain parts of the canal are not yet completed, but even as it is the corporation is one of the largest on the continent.

The Electrical Club makes several such trips throughout the year and any engineering student interested in these excursions, is invited to join the club. Visits of this type are arranged several times during the session and are open to all engineers interested and it is to be hoped that some of these trips will be made to other commercial works in the near future.

llant showing of Cloghessy more than compensates for this. He practically beat Rangers sing'e-handed, scoring five points via a dropkick and two singles. He also starred against C.N.R. Saturday, his 35-yard forward pass to Taylor for a touch-down giving Westward the victory, 7-1.

The probable line-up is as follows:
Westward: flying wing, McGarvie; halves, Orr, Talpis and Whittall; quarter, Fletcher; snap, Murray; insides, McLaughlin and Bailey; outsides, Taylor and Cloghessy; middles, Johnson and Donhee. Subs: E. Smith, Dube, Galbraith, Thomas, Szabo, Archibald, Adams, Patterson, Epstein and S. Smith.

McGill: flying wing, Carsley; halves, Byers, Kenny and Dikofsky; quarter, McLernon; snap, Christie; insides, Gurd and Montgomery; middles, MacGregor and Taylor, outsides, Hebert and Law. Subs: Dawson, Law, Dodd, McDougall, Savage, Klerans, Stevens, Tucker and Glashan.

report. He must be a diplomat in as much as his information must come from influential people of the financial world. If he can play the game squarely handle situations delicately and exercise diplomacy he should meet with no difficulty but rather with great success.

Since the Imperial Conference at Ottawa hundreds of manufacturers notified the Commissioner of their desire to turn their trade to Empire rather than to foreign countries. Although trade is constantly changing its aspect due to inventions and the improvement of equipment, it is possible for a manufacturer to change his products to meet the needs of the importer.

The Board of Trade appoints Commissioners in the British Empire; all information being sent to the Overseas Trade Department. Periodically they are recalled to the Mother Country for a short time. In conclusion Mr. Field expressed his willingness to be of any assistance to students contemplating writing any of the Trade Commissioner exams.

The Society executive feels that their functions are of such value for the practical outlook they afford, that they should be held more frequently. Plans are thus under way to meet once every two weeks instead of monthly and to present as speakers representatives from the Canadian National Railways and the Bell Telephone Company.
